

Palace in Oslo, Norway yesterday.

Software mogul-turned paper producer

Once known as "Asia's Bill Gates," Steven Chang has abandoned his moniker to invest in paper in Vietnam.

Love stands tall

A height-challenged couple unite by a stroke of fate and work hard to overcome their disadvantages.

Under one roof: Ireland and Vietnam

"In 17 years working I feel that Vietnamese people are very similar to Irish people," says Irish-Scotsman Michael Forsyth.

Residents block road to protest land compensation prices

Protestors dig up roads and set up a tent to prevent two companies from transporting materials and products in or out of their factories.

GOOD MORNING

EQUITIZATION'S 'NEW CLOTHES'
BY NHU NGUYEN

Moving towards a market economy, the government has turned many state-owned enterprises into shareholding

Women are key agents and drivers of change in the global economy, heard at a summit in Hanoi

PHOTO BY VNA

Vietnam pledges to improve business environment

The government is striving to fulfill its promises to facilitate foreign investors, a cabinet leader said yesterday.

